WASHINGTON, May 11, 1859.

The President this atternoon received despaiches from Mr. Reed, our Commissioner to Chica, who arrived by the Persia, stating that Mr. Dallas and himse's had a long interview with Lord Malmesbury immediately before the sailing of the steamer, on the subject of Euro pean affaire.

Lord "Malmesbury stated, as an absolute fact, that the British government had just learned that all negotiations were at an end; that war was inevitable, and that the Ministry expected confidently that hostilities would break out within twenty-four hours. It was believed that the Austrians would drive the Sardinlans at once to Genoa. taking possession of Turin, with scarcely any resistance

There was also positive information that the French and as Austria was advised of this, Lord Malmesbury believed the Austrians would endeavor to force an en gagement forthwith.

ATTEMPTED SHOOTING BY A WOMAN-SCHOULAR AFFAIR.-Mrs. K., to take the life of a Mr. L., residing in Fourth street, near South First street, E. D., with a pistol, on the corner of South Second and Fourth streets. The attemp was not successful, nor was the pistol fired off, but after she had vented her rage in words the woman left the some and returned to her home. The circumstances of the case appear to be as follows—Some three months since the wife of Mr. L. left her husband and four children and went to reside in a house in South Fifth street, near tenth, with the woman Mrs. R., who has a husband in the medical profession in New York, and an uncle of Mrs. L. It was som ascertained that two women were in the habit of receiving the visits of a Mr. A., a gentleman holding an important position in the Eastern District fire department. After remaining in the house for a time they removed to a house in Clymer street, near Kent avenue, where this Mr. A spent a great part of his time, rot withstanding he had a wrife in Williamsburg. Sunday morning Mr. L. met his wife, Mrs. K. and Mr. A. returning from a timestre, and accessing his wife, endeavored to effect a reconciliation for the sake of his children. She refused to have anything to do with him and left him. Tuesday Mr. L. went to the wife of Mr. A. and informed her of the conduct of her husband with these women. In the evening, on L. a return from work, he was mot by his wife and Mrs. K.; the latter drew a pistol from ber bosom and threatened to his wife also had a knife, with which she threatened to an utilitate him unless he surent ted. He refased, and after a few mornets his wife left, followed soon after by Mrs. who also had a raife, with which she threatened to an inhibitate him unless he suignited. He refused, and after a few moments his wife left, followed soon after by Mes K. L. They are simply waiting for some decisies news before action, and when the time comes will promptly decide what course to pursue. ost of the companies are pro ected from sudden loss by clauses in their policies which free them from all less by means of war, similar to that of the mercantile companies, each of whose policies has the following provision inserted:-

Warranted free from #88 or expense by reason of cap ture, seizure or detention, or the consequences of any at tempt thereat.

This exempts the companies from losses which may arise at the commencement of hostilities. At present here have been few applicat ons for policies including the waance of one half per cent on that account. As the aspec of E ropean affairs grows serious the companies will re spectively take it into account, and, on receipt of news of actual hostilities, concerted action will be bad.

The Cr mean war, however, was restricted to a narrow general European war-which now seems imminent-oc be far greater, and would be regulated according to the prospect by the latest news, and according to the proximity to the theatre of action. The news confirmed yes-terday, that the Austrians had actually crossed the Tiemo, was freely discussed, and it was thought that the under

THE REFECT ON THE SHIPPING. As yet there has been little movement among the ship ing on account of the war news, although there are hopes factive employment should further advices confirm the een engaged at this port to carry bayal stores to Treiste the principal seaport of Austria. Naval stores, however, would undoubtedly be worked up the Mediterranean with ifficulty, as the French cruisers between Gibraltor and the Adriat c would very likely overhaul them. Our mer to Trieste, from the additional danger of their exclusion by embarge, even though they should not be contraband of war. During the Crimean war our shipping found commercial employment because the theatre of war was so far distant that foreign vessels were taken from their legit mate occupation, and a vast demand was created nich our shipping bad to fil. A number of our steam ships were employed in transporting troops, arms, ammuaprobable that they would be called into the same ser models of marine architecture, which, through suicidal policy of our government, have been allowed o lay idle at our plans. The theatre of action, however, in tries in the world—capable of feeding almost all the ar mics, and the distance which troops will require to b ransported is comparatively short. It cannot be doubted lowever, that our shipping would receive some impetus, specially should England be drawn into the war. The the consumption of breadstuffs and other necessaries of life, which would necessarily drain the scene of combat called into requisition than our overstocked provision mar would doubtless be given to emigration would be no insig nificant item, and seeist in the resuscitation of our shipping interest, which has hardly yet recevered from the sastrous effects of the panic of 1857. As yet, as we have stated, there has been no visible movement, but shipown ral European war take place. OUR POREIGN POPULATION AND THE WAR QUESTION There have been various rumors of expeditions being on foot, composed of foreigners, in this country, and even roceed to Europe and join one or the other side in the coming contest. But we have een unable to trace these reports to any facts other than the rumored departure of some thirty Germans from Cin

The Italians of this city, numbering several thousands be firmly in favor of Mazzini, who, it will be remembered stands aloof from the present contest, and so far from for lowing the example of Garibaldi and his compatriots, who have nobly gone to the defence of Sardinia, affect to distrust the Emperor of the French as the last man in the world who has any care for their liberties. They—many them—say, "Rather Austria than Sardinia or France," and are organizing their forces, ready, when they shall usem it necessary, to join Mazzini, in favor of a grand radi-cal red republican revolution in Italy. They have already formed a number of societies which pass for benevole organizations and the like, but which really have the object of helping Italy, according to their notion, if they can.
The other Italian party in this city sympathises with Seribaldi and Sardinia. They say they are grateful to Victor Emanuel for the noble stand which he has taken behalf of Italian liberty; that he has afforded a refuge to the real patriots of Italy, even at the risk of shielding disposition to do the Italians justice, and that whether neans for their ends. The Mazzini party believe that the down, and Sardinia be compelled to disarm. When that happens, they believe that there will be a popular movenent of Italians for freedom, which it is their purpose to

The Sardinia party here is in a minority; but in Italy. they claim they number 683,000 to 6,000 of the red republicans, and point to the late almost universal acclamation of Victor Emanuel as the salvation of Italy. Count Cayour is a particular favority with them for his known liberal centiment, and they are willing to uphold him and he government, and believe the major portion of their counrymen at home will co so. They say that revolution, which always throws up the dreffs of society, has sent to America a great many men who are a disgrace to the talian nation, and not its fitting representatives-willing to cry Mazzini or Austria or anything else that their leaders may direct; that the sixteen thousand young men from Lembardy, Tuscany and vicinal States who have oined Garibaldi, and the exedus of Neapolitan exiler rom England to Piedmont, are a sufficient indication of the desires of the Italian people.

Among the Germans there is a strong Austrian feelingnot that they love Italy loss, but that they love Gern more. They have no faith in Napoleon; they wish that he could be signally defeated, rendering an insurrection and revolution in France inevitable, and as they believe general European revolution and the freedom of Germany a certainty. But we have heard of no projects on foot for the concerted emigration of any number of foreigners from this city to participate in the threatened troggle. The Germans are for the faderland, if faderland is for Austria. They remember that it empire of 1848, and that the Napoleonic dynasty has never favored liberty. There are a number of leading Hungarians, however, who intend to go ever and join Sardinia against Austria, and more would go had they

THE WAR INCREASING EMIGRATION The late advices from Europe give evidence of inpreasing activity in emigration to this country. There were over five thousand emigrants collected at Liverpool lone ready to embark. There can be no doubt that a European war would so decauge all departments of manu noturing industry as to necessitate a vast exedus of the working population, where steps would naturally be directed towards this country.
